Organizational Sketch:

The Lakehead Social Planning Council, a not-for-profit organization, seeks to strengthen Thunder Bay by providing collaborative community responses to social issues, research and access to human service information. They aim to bring people together, promote social and economic justice, develop programs and services, link people to services, and research social, economic, environmental and health issues. Some of their priority Issues are First Nations/Non-First Nations partnerships, homelessness, poverty, and youth. The services and resources the LSPC offers are: a directory of community services, a "Hard Times Handbook," an employment guide, analyses of community demographics based on census data, customized lists and labels, and an electronic database of human services.
