Biographical Sketch

Herman Frederick Eberts, primarily of Detroit, Michigan, was a mining entrepreneur who invested in mines and mining locations primarily in Northern Ontario from Sudbury to Rainy River, South Dakota (Deadwood), and Minnesota. There is some indication of investments elsewhere in the U.S.A.. He also showed an interest in the pulp and paper industry in Northern Ontario. His activities in Northern Ontario date from about 1889 to 1900.

Scope and Content

Series A 24/1/1 - Reports and Agreements

Reports and agreements relating to mining investments made by H.F. Eberts, primarily in Northern Ontario, including Marks Township, Steep Rock Lake, Black Bay, Rainy River, Loon Lake and Tache, mostly in the 1890s. Consists of letters written to Eberts by various contacts in Canada reporting on the sites and conditions of mines, assayers' reports, and formal agreements and titles to various properties. Also included is a report on pulp wood stands and the prospects for constructing a pulp mill in the Chapleau, Chester and Georgian Bay area, circa 1900.
