Biographical Sketch: Born 7 July, 1882, Charlie Cox led a tumultuous life. He was born in the London, Ontario area and after moving out west, settled in Port Arthur in 1908. He became one of the largest timber barons of the area, incorporating Charles W. Cox Ltd in 1924. In addition to timber and contracting, Cox led an active political life. He was mayor of Port Arthur for more than 15 years and held various provincial and federal seats of government. He was married in 1910 to Johanna Bengston, who died in 1953. Not long after, Cox's political and business careers began to decline. By the time he died on 28 March, 1958, he was penniless after going through very messy bankruptcy proceedings.
